Dear _____

Assisted Suicide is not necessary for the following reasons:

- 1) Palliative care doctors are able to control the suffering and the physical pain of the patient with appropriate medication for his/her stage of illness. Medicine has made great advances in this area. Once the patient is made comfortable he/she want to live. I have witnessed this so many times.
- 2) Euthanasia was considered a war crime 40 years ago and still is today! How did it suddenly become promoted as an act of compassion ? This is turning true freedom and compassion on its head!
- 3) Canada does not need to adopt a failed dangerous euthanasia experiment in Holland, where healing and care is no longer part of medicine!
- 4) I want to maintain a trusting relationship with my doctors!
- 5) Are the Federal and Provincial Governments ready to help fund life giving projects such as the building of a hospice close to a hospital? Please respond to this question.

Note: The Windsor Star has an excellent article about the new Hospice care sattellite at Leamington Hospital. April 7, 2016 "The Gift of Caring". Thank you for reading my letter

Sincerely,
